My Dance with Grace

Weldon Bradshaw

"... When we talk about our commitment to human health and to catalyzing the human experience, it is with people like Weldon Bradshaw in mind."

— Michael Rao, Ph.D., President,
Virginia Commonwealth University and VCU Health System

ABOUT THE BOOK

Late in 2009, Weldon Bradshaw was diagnosed with primary sclerosing cholangitis, an incurable, autoimmune liver condition. Over the next two and a half years, as the disease progressed slowly and his liver and health deteriorated, his prognosis grew bleak. By November of 2012, his doctor informed him that if he didn't receive a transplant, he'd be dead within the week.

Through it all, Weldon remained steadfast to the promise he'd made his family at the outset of his illness: he would be there to dance at his granddaughter's wedding.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Weldon Bradshaw has worked at Collegiate School in Richmond, Virginia, since 1972, as a teacher, administrator, and coach, primarily of cross country and track.

Since 1970, he has been a freelance reporter covering mainly sports for the Richmond News Leader, then the Times-Dispatch. Since 2001, he has written a weekly column entitled "Reflections" for the Collegiate website (www.collegiate-va.org).

He and his wife Emily, who is also a teacher at Collegiate, live in western Henrico County and have four adult children and four grandchildren.

ABOUT THE PUBLISHER
